Dear Martin,

I wanted to take a moment and thank you on behalf of our board and our membership for speaking at our March PMI Tulsa meeting. Your topic on Project Management Leadership was both engaging and timely. Too often, Project Managers drive to tasks or focus solely on the triple constraint and its impacts to their projects and take little to no time developing the leadership skills integral for successful project managers. Your presentation aptly called out these flaws and how doing so adversely affects the project and its team members. Your examples were spot on and the recommendations you provided on how to grow in areas that were currently dormant or deficient were very beneficial.

As we do with all our speakers, a post meeting survey was sent out to participants. Based on the feedback, our membership thought highly of your material, your enthusiasm and your presentation skills. I would definitely echo their sentiments! In fact, the board has already commented about having you speak again on our 2012 calendar. Our Programs Director will work with Jill to make that happen next year.

Until then, we wish you all the best and appreciate you taking the time out of your busy schedule to both educate and enlighten us on Project Management Leadership.

Sincerely,

Kris Reynolds, President
